What is history?

History may be defined as a systematic records of the past events, such as records of the Royal dynasties and like your family Album that displays your family history. A person who studies the source materials, analyses and records the events is called a Historian. The source material may be divided into two categories –Archaeological and Literary.

Archeological Source Material

The archaeological source materials are discovered through survey and digging of the earth. These materials include –

i. Coins – The study of coins is known as Numismatics.

The coins throw light on the ancient times.

ii. Edicts and Inscriptions – The writings engraved on stones, rocks, pillars, metal plates etc. are called inscriptions. The study of inscription is called Epigraphy.

iii. Artefacts – Artefacts are works of art including sculptures and paintings.

Literary Source Material - As there was no printing press, the accounts were written by hand. These hand written accounts are called Manuscripts. Literary sources include two kinds of literature –

- i. Religious literature- It includes Indian Brahmanical literature, Buddhist and Jain sacred texts and epics.
- ii. Secular literature- It is in the form of prose, poetry, novel, play, history etc.

Foreigners Accounts - Some foreign travelers visited India and had recorded valuable accounts of India, like Fa-hien, Megasthenes etc.

Introduction of Indian History – The Indian history is divided into two phase: Prehistoric and Historic.
